Happenings of Interest in and Around This Bustling Town. You Are Talked About

We shall thank our readers for all items of interest which they may be able to furnish us for publication. Phone 6A. P.O. Box 73

Colin Macleod, of Macleod, came to Coleman Sunday.

Dr. R. Agnew, is doing dentistry work in town.

J. Harris, of Camrose, was in town on Wednesday.

Miss Stafford is recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

The pen is mightier than the milt and more far-reaching.

Frank Hughes, of Crows Nest, was in town on Wednesday.

Russell Ferguson was visiting Fernie friends this week.

George Hardy is visiting Spokane and intermediate points.

WANTED.—A general servant. Apply to Mrs. Lyon, Blairmore.

Edward Kiely made a business trip to Frank on Wednesday afternoon.

Charlie Oumette went to Red Deer on Friday, returning Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Stafford and children went to Lethbridge, on Monday.

McKeen Hunter, of Lethbridge, paid his Coleman friends a visit this week.

Mrs. J. Snow, who has been confined to her bed for several days is improving.

Inspector Belcher of R.N.W.M.P. was up from Pincher Creek on Saturday last.

P. Partridge, the C. P. R. day operator, has been removed from Coleman.

O. E. S. Whiteside went to Homers on Wednesday morning, returning same evening.

FOR SALE.—Plain stationery, good quality, at bargain prices. At Coleman Miners' Office.

The offices and hall way of the Coleman hotel have just been nicely varnished and papered.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stafford went to Lethbridge this week to attend the funeral of Mrs. McKay.

Rev. A. E. Bolt, of Fishburn, will conduct Divine services here in the C. of E. church here on Sunday next.

Wm. Graham, secretary of the local union of U. M. W. of A., attended the miners' meeting held at Fernie this week.

Many friends of B. M. Stitt will be pleased to learn that he has recovered from a severe cold. Thanks to good nursing.

"Here shall the press the peoples' rights maintain. Unknawn by influence and unbribed by gain."

B. J. Nicklin, treasurer of the L. C. & C. Co. Ltd., left for Lethbridge yesterday to audit the books of the Royal Collieries.

"The King's Business" is the name of the daily paper which is being issued in Fernie by the Chapman-Alexander revivalist.

Six of Blairmore checker players are anxious to meet the same number of Coleman players at the latter place at an early date for a game.

Fred Cote, master plumber of the Coleman Hardware, went to Fernie on Monday to do some very delicate plumbing for a business firm there.

The Coleman Livery have vacated the old building recently occupied by them and have moved into the Cameron stable. Mr. Haley has just added several splendid new rigs to his large stock.

Since the 1st of April, while the coal miners' strike has been on, a few miners have left here with the hope of securing work at Michel and Fernie but after arriving there their hopes were shattered and some are returning to town with the hope of resuming work here within the next few days.

HALF HOLIDAYS

We, the undersigned merchants of Coleman, Alberta, agree to close our places of business on each and every Wednesday, excepting pay days, at one o'clock p.m., from the 14th day of April, 1909, to the end of November, 1909, and every night at six o'clock with the following exceptions: pay days, Saturdays and nights before public holidays:

The Coleman Mercantile Co., Ltd., per D. A. Simpson, manager; Alex. Cameron, The W. C. Co-op. Trading Co., per A. L. Blais, manager; 41 Meat Market, per R. Sherwood; J. Holmes, J. P. Pisony, P. Burns & Co., A. J. White, J. E. Upton & Co., per E. Kiely; Oumette Wright & Co., Coleman Hardware Co., per D. J. Hill; John Selus.

HARD ON THE BANKERS

Lowery of the Greenwood Ledge is at odds with the bankers and it is presumed he is not either carries his enormous wealth accumulated out of the newspaper business in his stocking or stoves it away in a coal oil can. But Lowery says he never goes to a bank wicket for inspiration for his paper. He says: "Bankers are like trolleys, they go as long as they are on the track and the juice is being poured into them. Away from his ledger the banker just butts in and telegraphs."—Moyle Leader.

WATCH COLEMAN GROW

BORN.—On the 8th inst., a son to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Price.

At Coleman on 13th inst., a son to Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Foster, of Sparwood, B. C., still born.

On the same date, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Achille Cornez.

ELECTION STILL ON

The election in the Rocky Mountain Constituency is not quite over yet. A count has been applied for in behalf of J. A. McDonald and the same having been granted will take place before Judge Carpenter in the court house, at Macleod, on Tuesday, the 20th inst.

OBITUARY

It is with feelings of regret that we chronicle the death of Mable, beloved wife of Joseph Frederick McKay, which took place at Lethbridge, at 11 p.m. on Sunday last, aged 28 years. We extend to the sorrowing ones our deepest sympathy.

William Ryan and James Hawley, of Corbin, were in town this week.

Edward Holmes went to Lethbridge this week to attend Mrs. McKay's funeral.

Superintendent Primrose of R. N. W. M. P., came to Coleman from Macleod yesterday.

Harry Clayton intends opening up a pool room in Fernie and will shortly leave here for that city.

Coleman lodge, No. 36, I. O. O. F., will hold their anniversary service in the Institutional church on 28th inst.

Three daughters of J. F. Simpson, Lethbridge, were here this week visiting their uncle, D. A. Simpson.

Alex. M. Morrison and Harry Clayton have dissolved partnership. Mr. Morrison purchasing Mr. Clayton's share.

Mrs. J. S. Pizer, of Detroit, Mich., arrived here on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Pizer intend making this their future home.

The evangelistic campaign saved us from having no church service here on Good Friday evening—a repetition of last Christmas and watch night (with the exception of the Roman Catholic services).

The farmers in this vicinity are greatly elated over the little fall of clanny snow which we have recently had. They say that it has done an immense amount of good in that it has moistened the ground aiding the growth of wheat.

J. M. Sutherland, M. A., arrived from Scotland on Monday. He will be Presbyterian missionary in Blairmore and Lillie. Rev. T. M. Murray will preach in Blairmore mission hall on Sunday next, at 11 a.m. and will introduce Mr. Sutherland.

With two more railroads, a few more banks, and with the opening up of the vast coal areas of the McGillivray Creek Coal & Coke Co. Ltd., to say nothing of the prospective pulp mills, Coleman will be the metropolis of Sunny Southern Alberta. Just keep your eye on Coleman.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

Fernie is not a Closed Shop— Miners Idle Through 'Czar' Sherman's Obstinacy

It has come to light that the miners' agreement with the Crows Nest Pass Coal Company, at Fernie, only assured a closed shop if the Company desired. This shows Sherman up in a bad light as he made this point one of his reasons for calling a strike, stating that he would insist on a closed shop the same as that in force at the Fernie mines.

Now it turns out that the miners have not a closed shop and that the new agreement is not as favorable to the men as the one just expired. The fact of the whole matter is, that it is a one-man fight. The little "Czar" cares not what suffering he brings upon the miners so long as his personal interests are satisfied.

How much better would it have been for the miners had they been guided by some cool-headed thoughtful man who instead of striking first and negotiating afterwards would have allowed the mines to work under the old agreements and in the meantime try and arrive at a satisfactory settlement. But, no, the little hot-headed "Czar" must tie up the whole country in order to gain a little notoriety at the expense of the men he "misrepresents."

Judging from the sentiments of the men in this district the likelihood of the little "Czar" retiring to his ranch for keeps seems good.

WHAT OUR CORRESPONDENT AT FERNIE SAYS ABOUT THE STRIKE

It is said that Morgan is going to stand firm for the agreement which the union officers have refused, after carrying by a referendum vote, but he will not speak definitely. It is understood that the International content that even before the Alberta agreement went to a referendum vote, while it was being discussed, the Crows Nest Pass agreement was sifted and was known to the miners' delegates, and it is contended that then was the time to make objections and not after it had been carried by referendum vote. Some of the miners on strike express the fear that if the agreement is not signed soon the operators will insist on another agreement, claiming the old one is invalidated by the present trouble and are anxious for a rapid settlement.

The Coleman camp is said to be the one in which dissimulation is most likely to arise, as conditions were very good there, and a large number of men had been making good pay.

The delegates are recent about happenings in the meetings, but tend to leave the impression that things are not moving as smoothly as had been hoped for.

Morgan does not seem to fear that district 15 will break from the international, believing that they cannot afford to separate from the wealthy and powerful American organization, and the delegates themselves leave the impression that the chances of a split are very unlikely, but everything is conjectural thus far, as Morgan's statement is not yet handed in.

Hard on Sherman

Hosmer, April 14.—There is no change in the strike situation; the operators are all standing firmly together and insist that the Macleod agreement and as ratified by a majority vote of all the locals should be signed by the officials of the district. It is difficult to get an expression of opinion but a great many of the men do not favor Sherman, who acted contrary to the wishes of the majority voting declining to sign the agreement and ordering a general strike in the district.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

Lethbridge, April 14.—If president Sherman of the Miners' union contemplates breaking from the international union it is said he will not receive the support of the local miners who are loyal to the parent body, believing that their interests are bound in it, and that it would be folly on their part to force an issue with the employers without the support of the international.

London, April 14.—General Booth, the great Salvation Army chieftain, received a birthday message from Earl Grey wishing him continued health and happiness and adding: "There are many in Canada who are better and happier for your life's work."

St. John's Nfld., April 14.—A total catch of approximately 200,000 seals is reported from the sealing fleet, the first of which, the steamer Fortel, arrived here on Sunday night. The Fortel brought in a heavy catch of 31,000. She reports that other vessels of the fleet have catches which will make the total catch about 200,000, slightly below last year's catch.

St. John's Nfld., April 15.—The sealing steamer Beothic, Eagle and Bonaventure have just arrived from the fishery. The Beothic brought 34,000 seals, the Eagle 22,000, and the Bonaventure 54,000, making the total catch by the fleet 250,000 for the season.

Prince Albert, Sask., April 14.—The city council at a meeting on Saturday decided to develop water power at Coal Falls in the Saskatchewan, 25 miles below the city. This is the water power reported on by C. H. Mitchell, expert, two years ago, who said that 10,000 horse power could be developed for a million dollars. The council instructed the city solicitor to take steps to secure a franchise from the government, and arrangements are being made to get both a water power expert and an industrial engineer to prepare plans and specifications for the work. Prince Albert is the only city in the province with such water power available.

Ottawa, Ont., April 15.—The revenue for the fiscal year to March 31 last is $83,100,000, or over eleven million less than for the same period last year. The revenue for March was $7,600,000, an increase of nearly half a million over March, 1908. The total expenditure on the consolidated fund is placed at $71,535,700, and on capital account $41,534,420. All these figures will probably be increased.

APRIL ROD AND GUN

The first sight of the fine cover of the excellent Spring, (April) Fishing Number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., will stir the blood of the thousands of fishermen throughout the Dominion and start them on the congenial work of preparing for the coming fray. The long and varied nature of the contents of the number, in which fish and fishing topics predominate, will still further stimulate them, and the opening of the fishing season will probably see an increase in the anglers' ranks as one result of the interest aroused through the wide dissemination of these stories. On every page of this excellent number the sportsman will be able to find material which cannot fail to prove of the deepest possible interest to him.

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Good Services—Large Gatherings—Fred. W. Davis Tells Life Story

"Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us." The work of inspiring the Christians, converting the sinners and redeeming the wanderers is evidently scoring a big success in Coleman. The services are well attended by people, who seem to be very enthusiastic in the work.

The men's meeting held in the Institutional church, on Sunday afternoon, was well attended—over forty being present. The same church was crowded in the evening to hear the evangelists. At this service Mr. McBretny's harmonious singing, which must have charmed the heavenly choir as it wafted its way to the higher regions, and Mr. Mitchell's preaching had a very telling effect at this service; both men again proving that they are exceptionally good at their work.

The Institutional church was literally packed on Wednesday night to hear Fred W. Davis tell the story of his life. He started by telling of his sinful life from boyhood to the time when he let the devil out of the box on January 8, 1903.

The story told by him was the same old story of the prodigal. His father was wealthy and sent him to college to educate him, but after only two years there he graduated by being expelled in disgrace. At the early age of thirteen years his parents sent him to dancing school where he met his Waterloo. He said that many young lives are being lost by the same evil. He was at one time associated with the famous Will Tucker, who was shot in a hold-up in Butte. The speaker did not think that smoking was a good thing. "If God intended you to smoke," said Mr. Davis, "He would have put a smoke stack on top of your head. A smoker if he goes to heaven will go in the smokers' room." His whole story was intensely interesting.

Rev. A. E. Mitchell, B. A., will conduct three services in the Institutional church here on Sunday next. Preaching services at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. He will address a men's meeting again at 4 p.m. Mr. McBretny will also sing.

The nightly meetings still go on.

HE IS BACK AT WORK AGAIN

ABRAHAM GARAND'S RHEUMATISM CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Suffered for Five Years and Was Four Months Off Work, but Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Him.

Alfred Station, Ont. (Special).—After being laid off work for four months by kidney disease and rheumatism, from which he had been a sufferer for five years, Abraham Garand, a section man on the railway here, is back at work again and he gives all the credit for his cure to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I am forty-one years old," Mr. Garand said when asked about his cure. "And have been section man here for ten years. For five years I suffered from kidney disease and rheumatism, also sciatica in my right hip, which descended to my feet. For four months I could not work. Reading of cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to try them. I used nine boxes in all, and to-day I am advising all who suffer from rheumatism to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Rheumatism and sciatica are caused by diseased kidneys failing to strain the uric acid out of the blood. Cure the kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills and they will strain the uric acid out of the blood. Then you can't have rheumatism.

Couldn't Feel Him

School Visitor (to teacher after the arithmetic class has been dismissed).—"That last boy said six quarts make one peck. Why didn't you correct him?"

Teacher—"Oh, I've tried to teach him that it takes eight quarts to make a peck, but it's of no use. He says he knows better; his father keeps a grocery store."

CATARH CAN NOT BE CURED with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients in what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Couldn't be Fooled

It was in the midst of a violent scene. The indignant wife had spared neither tears nor reproaches, when her husband interrupted her brutally: "My dear, tears are useless," he said. "I have discovered on analysis that tears contain a little phosphate of lime, some chlorate of sodium, and that's all."

A MAD SIGNALMAN.

British Sailer Goes Crazy and Causes Trouble.

A few days ago news leaked out of a strange incident which caused much mystification among the vessels of the fleet under the command of the recent visit to Torbay.

During the week-end a signalman on board one of the cruisers came down suddenly went mad. He sent all sorts of queer and incomprehensible messages from the ship to other vessels in the fleet. The climax was reached when the demented signalman threw overboard the lead casket holding the book containing the confidential signalling code. He was at once placed under arrest.

In the usual course the fleet took its departure from Torbay to Portland, but the Diamond remained behind to look for the lost book, the recovery of which was a matter of much importance. With the Diamond remained the battleship Swiftsure. Although the search was not making in the day, divers from the two ships were down all day on Sunday searching for the missing book, but without success.

On the following Monday the Commonwealth steamed round to Torbay, and collected the divers who were of the fleet, and operations were resumed on a large scale. These were under the direction of Commander the Carrier of the Swiftsure, who himself went down in diving gear. Towards evening the missing book was found in a secure fastening of water by the torpedo-instructor Dace.

Like all receptacles in which confidential codes are kept, the book was weighted with lead and perforated with holes to ensure its sinking on being thrown overboard, the final disposal of the book being to throw it into the sea.

The signal book was of such an important character that if it had been lost the whole signalling code of the navy would have had to be re-cast.

Neptune's Mail.

As far back as the reign of Queen Elizabeth there was a crown official known as the "Uncorker of Queen Bottles," whose duty it was to open all sealed bottles sent up by the sea and examine the contents. The official "Uncorker" continued to flourish down to the reign of George III, when the position was abolished. Neptune's mail cannot be said to be a quick method of communication. In July, 1857, while cruising in his yacht, the present Prince of Monaco threw a bottle overboard in mid-Atlantic. It was not recovered until seven years later, when it was picked up on a beach of San Salvador in the Bahamas. In point of time it was one of the longest letters ever received, and it has been eclipsed by the bottle which was found recently on the beach near Cape Horn. It contained a message, dated as far back as March 13, 1850, which stated that the long-missing mail was "striking off Cape Horn." It was the first intimation to reach England regarding the long-missing mail. It is curious that it should have been cast on shore in Great Britain, after drifting all the way from the Horn. In another instance, which was thrown overboard in 1837 by an American captain was not recovered until two years later, when it was picked up on the coast of Ireland.—English Illustrated.

Lord Curzon's Misfortune.

The ex-Viceroy of India seems to have had his full share of mishaps. A thief has just secured a nice little haul of silver belonging to his lordship; a short time ago he was in a nasty motor-car accident, and prior to that had a cycling mishap. He has cycled down to the House of Commons early in the forenoon to get his letters, and was coming away again when, in Palace Yard, he very nearly came into collision with an elderly and consequential member of the House, who did not recognize him in his tweed suit and billycock hat. Accordingly the pompous legislator ratted him soundly on his carapace, and George Tinworth, humble-minded, simple, a man if the people, would be the first to acknowledge that his gift was from above. A clergyman who visited Tinworth in his workshop was much struck with a pulpit in Doulsen where which he had designed and decorated. On one of the doors he had modeled a bird's nest, and under it had written, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." The clergyman asked him why he had put on a pulpit. "It is for the bickering and cautions to see," he said, "when they go into the pulpit in their fine robes." Years afterwards the clergyman came again and reminded him of it. Since they had met, the clergyman had risen to be Archbishop of Canterbury. It was Dr. Benson.

Tinworth's Pulpit.

Though it is true that a stream cannot rise above the spring, yet genius is always greater than personality, and George Tinworth, humble-minded, simple, a man if the people, would be the first to acknowledge that his gift was from above. A clergyman who visited Tinworth in his workshop was much struck with a pulpit in Doulsen where which he had designed and decorated. On one of the doors he had modeled a bird's nest, and under it had written, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." The clergyman asked him why he had put on a pulpit. "It is for the bickering and cautions to see," he said, "when they go into the pulpit in their fine robes." Years afterwards the clergyman came again and reminded him of it. Since they had met, the clergyman had risen to be Archbishop of Canterbury. It was Dr. Benson.

One Against the Judge.

One of Mr. Bigham's retorts is almost historic. A certain judge, distinguished amongst other things for his unpunctuality, and one day kept Mr. Bigham—then one of the busiest advocates of the day—waiting for twenty-five minutes. Having a second case to attend to in another court, he went to see how it was doing, and while he was gone the unpunctual judge arrived. "I have waited twenty minutes for you," Mr. Bigham, he exclaimed, impatiently, "when the busy counsel returned, 'My lord,' was the bold retort, 'I waited five times as long for you.'"

What's the Matter With the Blood

It is thin and watery, the lips and gums are pale, the whole system is weak and run down.

The food fails to supply the necessary nutrition and to get well you must use such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Your mirror shows you that the lips and gums are pale and the inner eye-lids without color.

"What can be the matter? You are anemic. There is a deficiency in the quality or quantity of blood in your body. The food you eat fails to make good this shortage. You must use some preparation that will supply in condensed form the elements from which blood is made."

Now Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is exactly what is required in ailments of this nature, for it is above all else an enricher and builder of the blood.

Women and girls are particularly subject to anemia. The feminine system demands an immense amount of blood in carrying on its functions and unless the system is strong and well nourished there is likely to follow a bankruptcy in the blood supply.

Such symptoms as loss of appetite, lack of interest in the affairs of life, feelings of languor and fatigue, impaired digestion, shortness of breath, dizziness and fainting, cold hands and feet, heart palpitation and weakness and irregularities are an indication of anemia or bloodlessness.

Do not delay treatment thinking that you will get all right, for anemia in its pernicious form is often incurable.

Get all the sunlight and fresh air you can get and add to the richest of the blood by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You will soon note improvement under this treatment and can prove the benefit derived by keeping a record of your increase in weight. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Immanuel, Hulse & Co., Toronto.

A Fatal Breath

Brookton (with statistical bent).—"Do you know, old man, I've just been reading up a lot of statistics on present-day mortality, and I have learned some remarkable things. Why, every time I breathe a man dies."

Brookton (who was absolutely right).—"By the great autotomes! Then why in the name of the census don't you chew cloves?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Sumner, Box W. L., Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions how to cure adults and children in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. The treatment cures adults and children, people troubled with uric difficulties by day or night.

If some people were to think twice before speaking they would probably forget what they wanted to say.

Same Tastes

Muggins—"My wife always makes over her old goods." Buggins—"And my wife sells her self when picking the goods of the other woman to pieces."

Good Enough for That

"How was that batch of funny stories?" asked the editor. "Rotten," said the sub-editor. "Oh, well, run them together as personal reminiscences of the late Mr. Ginelet, the famous wit and after-dinner speaker, and I guess they'll go."

A RELIABLE MEDICINE FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

On the word of thousands of mothers in all parts of Canada who have used Baby's Own Tablets there is no other medicine so good in curing all the minor ills of babyhood and childhood. And we give you the guarantee of a government analyst that the medicine is safe and contains no opiate or poisonous drug. Mrs. J. Murphy, St. Catharines, Ont., says: "I find Baby's Own Tablets the safest and best medicine for all stomach and bowel troubles and strongly recommend them to other mothers." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Trouble Upstairs
It was in a Cobalt hotel that the guest, registering in the office, heard a succession of loud yells. "What in the world is that—a murder going on upstairs?" he demanded. "No," said the clerk, as he slammed the books and lounged towards the stairs. "It's the spring bed up in Number Five. That tenderfoot up there doesn't get the hang of it, and every few days he gets one o' the spiral springs screwed into him like a shirt stud. I guess I'll have to go up if there ain't anything I can do for you in a few minutes."

Seeking Information
"These booze jokes aren't always on the men," said Fred Wade at the Pleinades Club. "New Year's Day a fine looking woman rushed into Stanley's." "Was my husband in here last night?" she asked. "And was I with him?" she demanded to know in tones more tremulous still.—Philadelphia Record.

Little five-year-old Margie had received a handsome doll at Christmas, and her mother asked her what she thought of it. "Oh, it's just lovely," answered Margie, "but I had been hoping all along it would be twins."

Her Values
"My dearest one," he said. "That was during the courtship stunt." "Yes," said the proprietor. "But that was after he had been appointed freight payer of the matrimonial combine."

The merits of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup as a sure remedy for coughs and colds are attested by scores who know its power in giving almost instant relief when the throat is sore with coughing, and the whole pulmonary region disordered in consequence. A bottle of this world-famous Syrup will save doctor's bills, and a great deal of suffering. Price 25 cents at all dealers.

If people could live on food for thought the baker and butcher would have to retire from business.

Fools never listen to the wise; but the wise occasionally give car to fools.

Repeat it—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

The Parson (making a call)—"And are you the eldest?" Little Elsie—No, sir; there are two older than me.

The Parson—And what are their names? Little Elsie—A parson and mamma.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

Four-year-old Allen had been given a Noah's Ark on his birthday. One day he put the animals all in, shut the door and said to some time. "What are you waiting for, Allen?" "Waiting for it to rain," he replied.

Repeat it—"Shiloh's Cure will always cure my coughs and colds."

A wise man never asks a woman her age; he simply tells her she doesn't look it.

He's a wise man who makes the mistake of guessing a woman's age too young.

It often happens that after putting up a big bluff a man falls over it.

A woman is somewhat of a fast express—unless she is tongue-tied.

Forgetful
"Young man," began the aged gentleman, "I am seventy years old, and don't remember having told you that."

"That's too bad," the young man replied. "Can't you have something done for your memory?"

The Old Story
I'm the War Cloud! I'm the War Cloud!

And I'm hovering all right; At the old stand, doing business, You'll find me right and tight.

But I'm waiting for the Balkans, And the fate I do condemn, Making me, wherever I start from, Wind up all the time with them.—Baltimore American.

First Step
"I understand that your friend has taken preliminary steps towards divorce."

"Why, he was married only this morning."

"Yes, that was what I had in mind."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hard to Please
"No man in the world is good enough for a woman," she said positively.

"That's right, I guess," he replied. "I never yet heard of a man being able to please one."

No Reason
Friend—Don't the police know anything about the burglary? The victim—What I think so. I don't suspect the police.

"He's familiar with all the best cellars." "A great reader?" "Yes; he reads gas meters."

Life is often a sentence at hard labor—with something added for good behavior.

According to a woman's point of view it is always the sins of the fathers that are visited upon the children.

And it sometimes happens that a man is married to his boss.

Many a man with wheels thinks he is the whole political machine.

STORIES OF LORD NORTHCOTE.

He Once Bore a Kiss and a Sausage For a Girl to Her Lover.

Appropos of Lord Northcote's name being mentioned as a probable successor to Earl Grey in Canada, it may be noted that his lordship was once curious and one of while one night through an avenue of some trees to a friend's house to dinner, he was suddenly pounced upon by a maid-servant, who kissed him effusively and pressed a little parcel into his hand.

"Here's a sausage for you. I can't come out to-night, as master has company," she whispered, and as mysteriously disappeared.

When he got to the house, he found one of his servants loitering by the gate.

"What are you doing here?" asked Lord Northcote.

"I'm waiting for my sweetheart," the man stammered.

"Where is she?"

"In service here."

"Ah, then I am right. Here I am, then, my sweetheart."

"What are you waiting for?" she asked him.

"I'm waiting for my sweetheart," the man stammered.

"Where is she?"

"In service here."

"Ah, then I am right. Here I am, then, my sweetheart."

"What are you waiting for?" she asked him.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

HOUSE CLEANING
Instead of being a monotonous drudgery becomes a labour of love when Sunlight helps you. Remember—Sunlight does all the work, at half the cost and in half the time of other Soaps.

Proof Positive
Bronson—I noticed your wife sitting by the window sewing this morning. I thought you told me yesterday she was ill.

Widow—So she was, but to-day she's on the mend.

Sleeplessness—Sleep is the great restorer, and to be deprived of it is a vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Farmer's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, where the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

The average man begins to sit up and take notice when he hears a noise like a silk skirt.

Minard's Liniment relieves Neuralgia.

Why They Object
Mrs. Knaggs—"I'm sure I don't see what reason my boarders have to complain. I treat 'em just like members of the family."

Mr. Knaggs—"That's the reason, my dear."

Worn Out
"You look so pale and thin. What's got you?"

"Work. From morning to night, and only a one-hour rest."

"How long have you been at it?"

"I begin to-morrow."

Too many people make the mistake of putting up their future happiness as collateral for the loan of a few dollars.

And you can't always tell by a girl's looks whether she has a cold in her head or is in love.

To render marriage a success the husband must be patient and the wife a martyr.

Might doesn't always make right; occasionally it falls down while trying to make good.

It's as difficult for some people to be good as it is for others to make good.

Coleman, Friday, April 16, 1909

LIBERAL IN BOTH NAME AND SPIRIT

Some months ago H. E. Lyon was offered but refused to accept a small piece of land in the disputed townsite of Blairmore. Nothing more was heard of the matter until a few days ago when a registered letter brought a title to "seventy-one hundredths" of an acre, comprising the land on which the buildings of H. E. Lyon are located.

The survey lines are run as close to the building as possible, so close that the doorsteps and the store platform are not included in this liberal grant of land. A person going out the front door of any of the buildings immediately commits trespass, if he moves carelessly in the back yard he does the same thing and if leaving the premises to go down town or any place else he cannot do so without trespassing on the lands of Sifton, Turiff, McKenzie & Co. The only way this difficulty can be overcome is by the use of a flying machine.

What does it all mean anyway? First, an offer to divide up. Next, about $3,000 is handed to the plaintiff's solicitor with a intimation what to do with it. And last of all in the face of a refusal to accept, a piece of land is forced on the plaintiff and all free of charge, solicitor's fees, registration fees, postage fees, land and everything connected with it all free, absolutely free.

What does it all mean? This is the latest phase in the famous case and the end is not yet.

C.P.R. MAKE CHANGES

Since the recent sittings of the Railway Commission at Lethbridge an order has been made requiring the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to move the town of Cowley from its location to Section 17 and place all buildings in the same position at the new site as they were at the old one. Everything in regard to the moving of the town must be satisfactorily adjusted on or before 8th day of September, 1909.

With reference to the change of the station and yard at Blairmore the commissions order that before any change is made the proposed new site must be submitted to the village council before being passed by the board.

NOTES

It is up to every man to patronize his own town and by so doing help himself and incidentally the other fellow.

A rancher entered a store in Pincher Creek a few days ago and said: "Say, boss, how much will you give me for a case of good fresh eggs?" The boss replied: "We pay our customers 35c a dozen but you had better send yours to Eaton & Co., Winnipeg; they are paying 10c a dozen." It cuts both ways. Spend your money at home, it will pay you to do so.

The Vernon and Armstrong papers and several others have established a veritable crusade against fake advertising of fruit lands and have shown up several real estate sales in very bad light, these having used Okanagan cuts to illustrate advertisements of Fraser river and Kootenay districts. These papers are doing very commendable work; it is a pity some means could not be employed to give these statements as widely publicity as those of the fakirs.—Grand Forks Gazette.

HELP THE BAND

The Coleman band gave a moving picture show in the opera house last night and they were certainly there with the goods. They will show again tonight. The music alone given by the band is well worth the admission fee to say nothing of the very interesting pictures.

UNLOCKING THE PACIFIC DOORWAY

Vancouver, B. C., April 15.—Second Vice President William Whyte of the C. P. R. has arrived to settle the details for handling Alberta wheat here and to discuss western affairs with coast officials.

It is understood that some definite arrangement may be made for the completion of the Kootenay Central Railway from Golden down to the Crow's Nest. An announcement regarding this will probably be made by Whyte before he returns east.

Mr. Whyte believes that Alberta wheat is all destined to go through Vancouver, probably in sacks, by the Tehauntepec route, rather than around the horn. But if wheat is put on the free list, large quantities may be sent from Alberta to Minneapolis for milling rather than to the old country. P. W. Peters has returned from Mexico and is conferring with Mr. Whyte.

Rosalta was shipped to Cranbrook this week to prepare for the races to be held there on the 24th May. Spence Lewis is in charge.

The shareholders of the Southern Coal Syndicate are wearing smiles these days. The discovery of a nice clean seam of coal is the cause of the bright countenances.

The Pelletier section of Blairmore is fast being taken up and a few more weeks will see several more new residences under construction. Lots in the main part of Blairmore are being held at a high figure and very few sales are being made at present.

The new side track leading to the West Canadian mine is being built this week. Jon Moreno has a gang of men at work and expects to have the grading for the first few hundred yards ready for the rails early this week and the balance will be completed in short order.

The Rocky Mountain Cement Company's spur was put in this week and is now ready to receive the large shipments of machinery now in transit, the first consignment of which reached here a few days ago. It is an immense steel tube, known as a rotary cement kiln. It occupied four flat cars.

BE READY IN 1913

Washington, April 13.—President Taft today again told Chief Engineer Goethals of the Panama canal that if the great waterway can be completed by close of 1913, he wanted to see it done. Colonel Goethals has already declared that the canal will be completed in 1915, and he is understood to believe it impossible to save two years on the work, but he told the president he would put every nerve to work to expedite matter to carry out the president's order.

MINERS LOSE

Any even-numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 1 and 36 not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Application for entry must be made in person by the applicant at a Dominion Lands Agency and is subject to the following conditions: (1) The homestead must be in a section of 160 acres or less. (2) A homesteader may, if he so desires, perform the required residence duties by living on farming land owned solely by him, not less than eighty acres in extent in the vicinity of his homestead. He may also do so by living with father or mother, on certain conditions. Joint ownership in land will not meet this requirement.

(3) A homesteader intending to perform his residence duties in accordance with the above while living with parents or on farming land owned by himself must notify the Agent for the district of such intention.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST*LAND REGULATIONS

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

(1) Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead. Price $10 per acre. (2) Six months' residence in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homesteaded interest and cultivate fifty acres). A homesteader who has exhausted his home land right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in any district. Price $100 per acre. (3) Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $500.

UNIQUE EXPERIENCE

A coyote was the subject of much excitement to a prominent business man here last week. On seeing the animal only a short distance away he immediately hit the trail for the house to get the gun with which to lay the brute low.
Fortune was against him at this point as a neighbor had borrowed the rifle, only a few days previous and had not, of course, returned it as should have been done. Quite out of breath but willing and anxious to slay the depleter of his chicken coup he made the 100 yard dash to the neighbor's for the gun at a clip that would make Tom Longboat sit up and take notice. On arriving at said neighbor's he was so much out of breath that for a time he could not make known his wants and not having enough Indian blood in his veins to make signs there was a great waste of time and temper during which the coyote had ample time to devour the entire coup and contents. As time elapsed and the peace-maker's second wind was coming back to him he managed to convey the idea that it was a gun he wanted. The neighbor unfortunately had used up the last cartridge the day previous but offered the gun with his regret. The owner of the gun much exasperated at the ill luck and turn of affairs left in disgust and proceeded home to discover that the coyote had found his way into the house and made friends with the family. Bob McKay can have his pet coyote on application to the neighbor with the distinct understanding that it be kept tied up.

MINERS NOT ACTUAL STRIKERS

A press despatch which came to hand from Homer last night says: The Ferne convention which endorsed Sherman's action in ordering the strike shows that there are twenty-five members. As Jaxon, the socialist agitator brought in by Sherman from the prairie country is included, there were only twenty-four members. Of these twenty-four who are endorsing the strike sixteen or sixty-six and two-thirds per cent, are not employees of the companies affected, fifteen, or sixty-two and one half per cent, are neither employees or live in the towns affected, and six or if Sherman is included as having headquarters in Ferne seven or twenty-eight per cent, are Crow's Nest company employees or live in Crow's Nest company towns.
From this appears that Sherman having set aside the agreement, ratified by the men in the locals affected, now places their cases in the hands of a Ferne convention of which but 37 1/2 per cent, come from the towns where the strike has been ordered.

BARLEY PUBLICITY

A new era dawns for all Alberta products and especially for that of barley. The new western route you have heard so much about is now an accomplished fact and export markets are opening there doors to us every day; only to find that the Alberta merchant and Alberta farmer have but a small offering in the way of export stuff.

The grower understands the value of wheat and oat production which commodities have always brought good prices; but the farmers experience in the matter of growing barley has been different.
The prices have necessarily been low, consequently the only barley grown was to give rotation in crop and rejuvenate the soil, aside from a small local market and that raised for the farmers own use.

Things have changed.
Through exportation and a cheaper western outlet the growing of barley can be made one of the most profitable of crops.

Let your watchwords be 1-000,000 bushels of barley for export from the province of Alberta in the grain year of 1909 and 1910, and, if a crop of the above dimensions can be raised, the farmer is sure to get large returns, and it is the largeness of the barley crop that will bring us the foreign markets and its resultant good prices.

ABHOR SOCIALISM

Sydney, N. S., April 14.—A curious side light on the growth of Socialism in the ranks of organized labor was the refusal of the women's organizing committee to entertain Mrs. Jack London, wife of the California novelist, at tea last week while her husband addressed the labor council. A large majority affirmed, after a heated debate, that it was utterly impossible to entertain her though she is an estimable woman, seeing that Mr. London, identified himself prominently with the socialist movement, which they hold in abhorrence.

PINCHER CITY - ALBERTA

The Standard Syndicate.

By Annis Hinchman.

Copyright, 1928, by Associated Literary Press.

"Mr. Harrington wears a broad brimmed felt hat and a white lawn tie and dresses almost as well as if he had a good tailor. He wears his hair a la Samson before he met Delilah. When it fell he couldn't make a speech. In solemn pauses he sweeps it off his noble brow. In frenzied moments he clutches it wildly, and fiery eloquence results. The distinguished young southern congressman has struck a happy medium between a saphron and a Fourth of July orator. He has the profundity, the all-wise, know-it-all of the college student and the cheap wit, state legislator, I-work-to-please-the-public manner of the Independence day speaker."

Mr. Harrington read the article several times. He was accustomed to reading about himself, but in this sketch was a personal ridicule which at once amused and stung him. It had been cut from a provincial paper by a clipping bureau. It was not signed, but under the heading "News From Washington" were the words "Copyright by the Standard Syndicate."

That night Mr. Harrington visited a barber and was properly shorn. A factious young man intimated that Samson had met Delilah, and a battle followed. The factious young man was badly beaten and the hot tempered congressman somewhat disfigured.

The bureau sent another clipping from the Standard syndicate's news, Washington.

"Mr. Harrington refuses to discuss his black eye, but a story is being told concerning the cause of it. There are several aspirants for Mr. Harrington's seat in congress, and he is making strenuous efforts to strengthen himself with the leaders of his party in his district, many of whom are old Confederate soldiers. At the Army and Navy club a few days ago Mr. Harrington confided to an ex-Confederate colonel his intention of introducing a bill pensioning the soldiers who fought under John Wilkes Booth. The ex-Confederate colonel resented Mr. Harrington's proposed legislation as an insult to the south and proceeded to average the honor of his lost cause. Mr. Harrington's friends regret that his eagerness to make a grand stand play has shown so little political shrewdness."

The congressman swore picturesquely and called his secretary.

"Smith," he thundered, "wire the editor of that paper for the address of the Standard syndicate and the name of the person who writes the 'News From Washington'."

The editor's reply came: "Standard syndicate, Washington, D. C., H. W. Carleton, president. The person who writes 'News From Washington' is the city directory did not contain the name of the Standard syndicate nor of H. W. Carleton, and at the postoffice the clerks did not receive the address. The mail for the syndicate was placed in a lock box. The clerks did not know who called for it."

One morning the congressman read in the "News From Washington" "Mr. Harrington is a most chivalrous gentleman. It is said that he has promised his fair constituents to introduce and secure the passage of a bill providing for the free distribution of hairpins and violet perfume. Will such a measure tend to curtail our supply of free government needs? If so, we should give the matter serious consideration. A new issue may confront us and result in the formation of two new parties—the hairpin-perfume party and the seed party. We call the attention of statement and thinkers to this proposed bill of Mr. Harrington's."

As the wrathful congressman finished the article his secretary entered the room.

"I've found the Standard syndicate," he announced triumphantly. "Tracked them down at last."

Mr. Harrington picked up a riding whip.

"Where are they?"

"In the Cairo."

"Who are they?"

"I don't know. A girl—a stunner—came out of the postoffice as I was passing and walked up the street ahead of me. She had a handful of letters, and one of them dropped, address up, on the sidewalk. I picked it up, and the address was 'The Standard syndicate.'"

"I followed her, and she went to the Cairo. The elevator boy told me her name was Carleton, and she gave me the number of her suit. She's probably the daughter or sister of H. W. Carleton. The elevator boy didn't know anything about him."

Mr. Harrington went to the Cairo. From the elevator he walked rapidly down the corridor to the door of the Carleton suit. He pressed the electric button and took a tighter grip on his riding whip.

The door opened, and a girl in street dress stood before him.

"Miss Carleton?"

"Yes."

"Is Mr. Carleton in?"

"She looked puzzled."

"Mr. Carleton?" she asked.

"Mr. H. W. Carleton, president of the Standard syndicate."

"No; he's not in."

"Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"Is he out of the city?"

"Yes."

"Who manages the Standard syndicate in his absence?"

THE LONDON LANDLORD.

He is a Tyrant, and His Tenant is a Sort of Slave.

According to Sydney Brooks, London correspondent for the Harpers Weekly, New Yorkers who live in rented flats or houses are enjoying a condition of paradise compared with the lot of the London tenant.

The British landlord, he complains, is a tyrant, and the long lease system is the basis of his tyranny. The system of twelve months' leases that obtains in New York is the Magna Carta of the tenant. It has done infinitely more for American happiness than either the Declaration of Independence or the divorce laws. It releases landlords from complaint and confers upon the tenant the status of something very like equality.

To be able to take a house or a flat for a year, with the option of renewal for a further year—a rent that in houses includes all decorations and repairs and in flats includes steam heat, electric light and a perpetual supply of hot water—is to be a free man.

What London landlords are apparently on the lookout for is a slave, and a slave who, besides being a millionaire, will outlive Methuselah. Virtually it is that the skeleton framework of a house that he hands over to you for twenty-one years. The tenant does the rest.

If he wishes to add a new window or to put in the electric light it must be done at his own expense. You are to imagine a procession of tenants passing through every London house, each one in turn laying out money on some pet improvement of his own. This one adding a billiard room, that one concentrating on a gas cooking range, a third lavishing parquet flooring, a fourth on a bathroom, a fifth installing a heating system, and so on. And every one of these additions becomes in the end the landlord's property.

Eleven Years.

It is eleven years since the intrepid Andrew sailed away into the mysterious land of the unknown. The fate of him and of his ballroom remains a mystery which probably will never be solved. In his day, so recent as this, aerobatics was in its infancy. Now it is a science, and the ballroom aloft for twelve hours, the feat he attempted is nearer possibility. One message came from him after starting. A housemaid brought him a pigeon to the whaler Alken. It ran thus:

July 12, 12:30 o'clock, lat. 52 degrees 2 minutes, long. 15 degrees 5 minutes east. "Oh, I couldn't. At first I was great fun to deceive you and to keep you hunting H. W. Carleton. And when I knew you better I couldn't tell you I was the president of the Standard syndicate. The whole thing was a mistake. I'm in the printers."

A little of the hardness left his face. "Why did you not tell me?" he asked. "Oh, I couldn't. At first I was great fun to deceive you and to keep you hunting H. W. Carleton. And when I knew you better I couldn't tell you I was the president of the Standard syndicate. The whole thing was a mistake. I'm in the printers."

"I came here as correspondent for a western paper, but the pay was small. I wrote to a number of provincial papers and asked them if they could use a series of weekly letters from Washington. They signed myself 'The Standard syndicate' and the rest was easy. Several papers subscribed for the letters. Every week I wrote the 'News From Washington,' made the copies on the mimeograph and sent them to my correspondents and their papers. All the correspondents were puffing you, and I thought you were becoming a little spectacular and very conceited. After I knew you I was sorry and blushing, but I was afraid to ask your forgiveness, and I was afraid you wouldn't."

"Do you think I care for what you wrote about me?" he asked indignantly. "In my mind I regard that as a defeat. But I care—drastically. I have not written any more nasty things about you. I've praised you as much as the others have, but couldn't tell you. Her voice broke, and her eyes were full of tears. "Don't be angry with me. Can't you forgive me?"

"I can—on conditions."

"What are they?"

"The Standard syndicate goes out of business and H. W. Carleton devotes his time to criticizing me—but not on paper."

"Miss Carleton gathered up her envelopes and dropped them into the open fire and laid the mimeograph on the floor. Then she turned to Harrington and held out her hands."

"The Standard syndicate has gone out of business," she said.

The earliest hospitals.

Since the earliest times there have been hospitals for the sick. The first designed for hospital work, although at first they were little more than shelters or cheaply built almshouses. In the Roman empire there was a medical staff to look after the wounded, and the first hospitals were for the sick and dying.

Among the earliest hospitals on record is that said to have been founded by Valens in Caesarea 370-80 A. D. and the one built in Rome by Fabiola, a Roman lady, although like most others of that and even later times, both institutions probably were almshouses as well.

The origin of our present hospitals is traced to the monastic arrangements for the care of the sick and indigent. Every monastery once housed the sick and convalescent.

Almost the earliest record of the building of a hospital in England is the life of Lanfranc, archbishop of Canterbury, who in 1080 founded two for leprosy and one for ordinary ailments. In the sixteenth century London, between 1710 and 1747, established five public and five special hospitals. In Ireland, between 1726 and 1774, there were five public and three special ones established in Dublin, one in Cork, one in Limerick, and in 1797 one in Belfast—Washington Post.

UNRULY SPIRITS.

The Story That Comes From It, About a Haunted House.

It is steadily producing the champion "spooky" yarns of the decade. The folio comes from Ancestral and is given in the language of two brother lawyers, the sons of Signor Marraconi, public prosecutor.

Several days the strangest events have been taking place in our house. Last night we heard repeated knockings and the moving of furniture in unlighted rooms. Hurrying thither we heard a rustling and nothing more. Meanwhile there was a curious disturbance in the electric wires, and all the bells in the house began to ring, making a horrible din. Believing the wires had somehow got into contact, we had the whole installation examined by a competent person, but everything was in order. But the most remarkable thing was the discovery of wet feet in the dining room and almost flooding the floors. These were seen not only by us, but by other persons as well. Shortly afterward we were in the dining room when we saw milk coming up through the floor. We reported the matter to some workmen, who examined the walls, broke up the floors, raising the blocks, but they did not see the least trace of milk, water or any other liquid.

"Still the prodigies were not finished, as was shown by the appearance in the dining room of a cup filled with milk. One of us who happened to be near the spot on the floor where the cup appeared drew a little nearer and saw a cup of coffee and milk arrive. Our father then cried jokingly: 'Coffee and milk? Bah! I should prefer wine.' Shortly afterward, while the table was being cleared, we saw a liquid running from the walls. It was wine. A little while ago a pear appeared and then we recalled that our sister had asked at table for a pear, but was refused, as she had already eaten enough fruit. The pear was on a dish, which was locked. It has been glass-enclosed. When the latter was opened the pear was no longer there."

"We then thought that some mysterious, melodramatic force might be exercised by our sister, so we watched her every movement carefully and followed the child when she rose from the table. When she passed close to the bookcase, where there were two volumes on spiritualism, one of the books was raised in the air as though by some supernatural force. It hit the girl several times on the shoulders, and she cried out in pain. The air and was then clapped against the wall at the very spot whence the milk had issued."—Chicago News.

Penalizing Night Buyers.

By a special order of the ministry of the interior persons who ring the night bell at the chemist's between 10 o'clock at night and 6 o'clock in the morning will have to pay a tax of 10 centimes (fivepence) in addition to the cost of the medicine or other articles they wish to obtain. The object of the order is not to increase the chemist's receipts nor to protect the public from any new taxes, but merely to induce the public to get medicines and drugs during the hours the shops are open—between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m.

In urgent cases the doctor will be charged, the physician marking the prescription E. N. (Expeditis nocturnis). The chemists have agreed to allow the King a special rate of 10 centimes on the money received from the new tax, some reimbursement for their extra labor.—Vienna Dispatch to Pall Mall Gazette.

Costly Royal Funerals.

Some foreign papers have been discussing the cost of the recent funeral of King Carlos of Portugal, the crown prince of Portugal, incidental to the reported outlay on other royal obsequies. It-Bits says that no modern ruler has been buried at the cost of Alexander the Great, whose funeral $5,000,000 was spent, part of the money going toward providing a solid gold coffin for the dead ruler. Emperor William of Germany was buried at a cost of $150,000, and the last ruler of the Grand Duke Nicholas used up about $200,000. At the funeral of President Carnot $300,000 was spent on flowers alone. When the Duke of Wellington was laid out in 1845, $500,000 was spent, giving him what has been described as the most splendid funeral of the nineteenth century.

New Flags.

The professional flag maker was asked what becomes of all the old flags when a new star, representing a new state, must be placed in the union. "The cheap printed flags," he replied, "are almost a total loss. Of course we keep track of legislation as well as we can and anticipate to a large degree the drawing of the new star, while the expensive flags, as fast as possible, we cut out the stars and arrange them, with the addition of the new one, in a new union, according to designs made by congress or the war department. The stripes of course never change. Personally I should like to see the union reformed. Why not our national emblem, the eagle, in the center, surrounded by all the stars of the two or three circles?"—New York Press.

A New Spelling Fly.

"The Nu Spella Long of Amurrita has just been published. It is a new and original seventy-five page book in the language. 'Tais' and 'tungs' are some of the words. It would give you a sick feeling about the diffract to eat an egg with your hands. We get a number of our old lines at the end of such form words as 'tains' and 'tungs' and 'tains' and 'tungs'. There are about thirty more, but these are more than out for your paragraph."

THE DEACON EXPLAINS.

He Tells What Was the Matter With His Friend Taylor.

JOEL HAD MANY TROUBLES.

According to Spooner, He is Now Drawing Long Breaths of Relief in Another Land—The Kind of a Widow Not to Marry.

(Copyright, 1928, by T. C. McClure.)

"GENTLEMEN," said Deacon Spooner as the usual crowd had assembled at Snyder's grocery for the mail to arrive and be distributed. "I learned late this afternoon that our friend and neighbor, Joel Taylor, had disappeared from his home, with strong suspicions that he had precipitated himself into the mill pond in search of peace and rest. I presume all others of you have heard the same thing and are aware of the fact that in the morning the pond is to be dragged for the body.

"There may be some among you that think Joel has taken a skip and is still here, but I am not of the number. There is no doubt in my mind that he shall fish him out of the water and that his face will wear the same pitiful expression that we have seen resting there for the past few days."

"The question among us is what Joel should want to die, and it is a question that most of us can answer to our own satisfaction. He has simply got tired of life. He could look back for five years and see nothing but ashes. When he looked ahead into the future he could not see that it held anything for him. He was a good father to his father, and according to my way of thinking, he is now drawing long breaths of relief in that other land."

"Gentlemen, what was the matter with Joel Taylor? Why didn't he go around whistling 'Yankee Doodle' and feeling that this was a good old world to live in? The answer is not far away. He married the wrong woman. Some of us who knew what he was planning to do argued and ranted with him, but it did no good. Joel would have a plan, a hoe, a shovel, and as any man on earth, and he was honest from head to heel, but at the same time he was not in his ways. I haven't saying that it wasn't the right thing for him to fall in love with and marry a widow, but what I'm contending is that there are several kinds of widows, and he ought to have taken advice. If he had married one who had been a widow only a year or so, with the tears of grief still in her eyes, he'd have been alive and happy today."

"What sort of a widow did he marry? I'm not going to say anything particular again here. I've just said he had been a widow and bossed things for seven years. She had got the bossing business down fine. Even out of $150,000, and the last time he placed would jump at her call. Joel had come up by himself without any bossing, and he was one that couldn't womankind. He had thought every man was an oak and that every woman was a vine that wanted to cling to him and ask nothing better than to have a master."

"Well, as I said, it was no use to argue with him. He was not and went ahead, and most of us here know what began to happen almost at once. The widow had a fan, and she didn't turn it over to him. No, sir. She kept it right in her own name. She told him she was perfectly able to boss that and his, too, and she went ahead and did it. Joel hadn't been married three months when his first week was planned out for him. He couldn't buy or sell without his wife's consent. If he got roused on the fence to chin with a tin peddler or a lightning rod man, he'd hardly get his mouth open before down would come the wife to hustle him back to work."

Occasions When Joel Rebelled.

"I know there were occasions when Joel rebelled, same as any man of spirit, but rebellion was crushed almost in the bud. His wife had a way of looking at him that set his knees in quivering. If he said out loud she starved him into obedience. I've known him to live for four days on raw turnips before he gave in, but he knuckled he had to. There was evening when he wanted to see him here. He'd slip in with a dog or a cat, or a fawn or a kitten, and if he couldn't be waited on right away he was in a great. No matter how good a story anybody was telling, he never dared to stop and listen. On five or six different occasions when he had stayed a minute over his time his wife appeared at the door and beckoned him out and took him by the ear and led him home. The next day he got nothing to eat as a punishment.

"As if this bossing business was not bad enough for a man who imagined he was a sturdy oak and capable of supporting a dozen clinging vines, the wife was a water diviner. She took it into her head that he had liver complaint, and for two straight years she made him take four doses a day of a compound she had prepared. There was no stopping it. He had to walk up to the rack and dose. Then she took a notion that he had jaundice, and she brewed another decoction for that. Then she decided that his shortness of breath came from the asthma, and she started in to cure it. Nothing whatever allied Joel too much bossing. It was his grief and humiliation over it. Any man who had got thin and peevish with his feelings to carry around."

"You all remember that we had a circus visit this town two years ago. Joel made up his mind to go and see the elephant. His wife forbade him to, and on that day he was set to hoeing corn. He ran away from his work, and she followed and took him out of the town. I think he had determined on that day to break the shackles at any cost, but alas, it was too late. His wife brought the rolling pin into play, and he was a licked man. It was a day or two after that he came to me and wanted to know if a man could swallow enough plug tobacco to kill himself. I could not tell him, and the sign he heaved when he turned away rings in my ears yet. He was thinking of suicide at that very time."

"Just what happened today to drive Joel into the mill pond I can't say, but I know that about three months ago his wife made up her mind that he had a tapeworm and began doctoring him for it. She cooked up a compound of tar and lasses and vinegar and burdock, and the number of doses a day was eight. She said she'd lay out that tapeworm or kill Joel, and she had kept her word. Of course there was no tapeworm. It was just remorse on Joel's part to think he hadn't taken our advice. The remedy was kept in a bottle on the clock shelf, and eight times a day he had to walk up and take it. If he dodged a dose he had to take two next time."

Felt Sorry For Him.

"Three days ago as I was going past the house I saw him out behind the smokehouse wiping his weeping eyes. I felt to pity him, but passed on. I knew that the time had passed when he could stand up and assert his rights, and the wife had then been talking to him it would have only made matters worse for the victim."

"Gentlemen, we are to meet here at 8 o'clock in the morning to drag the mill pond for the body. But we who have. We shall find the mortal remains of Joel Taylor among the old boots and shoes and rusty pans that have found their way there for the last ten years. He may have stuffed stones in his pockets to make a surer job of it, or he may have hung to a log after he found himself on the bottom. In either case we will be found. When we have got him ashore and turned on his back we will look into his face. We shall there find a smile of peace. No more bossing—no more dosing. He is free at last, and it is our duty as men and neighbors to follow his remains to the graveyard and hear the bell toll upon his coffin, and that will be the end for us—that is, it will be the end of Joel Taylor. But we who live on will still have another duty. It will be to warn mankind that there are various kinds of widow women, and he who marries one of the wrong kind will find that she will sting like a hornet and bite like an adder."

THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE

A man went into a hardware store and wished to purchase an axe. Being shown the article and informed that the price was $1.15, he said: "Why, I can get that same kind of an axe from a catalogue house for 90 cents."

"Very well," said the hardwareman,
"I will give it to you for the same price, provided that you will do the same with me as you would with them."

"All right," replied the customer, as he handed over a dollar bill, the merchant giving him back ten cents in change.

"Now," said the hardwareman, "I want twenty-five cents more to pay express charges," which the purchaser gave him. "How much did your axe cost you?"

"One dollar and fifteen cents," the man answered.

"Very good; now give me five cents more for money order fees and postage," which the purchaser had to hand over. "Now, how much did your axe cost you?"

"One dollar and twenty cents."
"Not so cheap after all," said the merchant, whereupon he picked up the axe, tossed it back on the shelf and told the customer to call for it in ten days, as that would be as soon as he could get it if he had ordered it from the catalogue house.
